"Without going at length into a much overworked subject, we are constrained to remark that it is somewhat difficult to discover how the Democratic partisan organs find so much cause for rejoicing in the acquittal of Capatia Riplex by a Jury composed entirely of Democrats. They indorse the verdict of acquittals which means that Riplex was not a conspirator with Tatlor or any one else in procuring Senator Geography. If they have been senated as a conspirator with Tatlor or any one else in procuring Senator Geography. If Riplex was innocent, then he knew nothing of any conspiracy, for a knowledge would constitute guilt. If he was guilty, then the Jury erred in acquitting him. It is manifestly absurd to praise a Democratic Jury for doing its duty in clearing an innocent man, and at the same time declare that the evidence against RIPLEX establishes the charge of a conspiracy."
